

ADMINISTRATIVE POLICY
CHILDREN IN CLASS

This policy pertains to employees and students.

It is the policy of Fox Valley Technical College that children under the age of 18 should not accompany registered students, training participants, or college staff to classes, seminars, or other educational activities. If a child is brought to a session, the instructor or appropriate division or building manager is authorized to ask the student/participant and child to leave for that session. An instructor can permit a child's attendance under special circumstances and when such accommodation poses no disruption to the teaching and learning process.

Under no circumstances are children permitted to be left unattended on the college premises. If a child is left unattended, staff should immediately notify the campus security office as well as the appropriate division or building manager.

This policy is in no way intended to discourage or prohibit special events, activities, and programs aimed at involving children with the College.
